Sundar Pichai, in full Pichai Sundararajan is an Indian – born American computer scientist and executive who is the CEO of both Google, Inc. (2015) and its holding company Alphabet Inc (2019). As a boy growing up in Chennai, Pichai slept with his brother in the living room of the cramped family home, but his father an electrical engineer at the British multinational GEC saw that the boys received a good education.

At an early age Pichai displayed an interest in technology and an extraordinary memory, especially for telephone numbers. After earning a degree in metallurgy (B.Tech, 1993) and a silver medal at the Indian Institute of Technology of Kharagpur, he was awarded a scholarship to study at Stanford University M.S in engineering and materials science, (1995). He remained in the United States, thereafter, working briefly for applied materials and then earning an M.B.A (2002) from the Wharton School of University of Pennsylvania.

Following a short stint at the management consulting firm McKinsey & Co., Pichai joined Google in 2004 as the head of product management and development. He initially worked on the Google Toolbar, which enabled those using the Microsoft Internet Explorer and Mozilla Firefox Web browsers to easily access the Google search engine. Over the next few years, he was directly involved in the development of Google's own browser, Chrome which was released to public in 2008. That same year Pichai was named Vice President of product development, and he began to take more active public role. By 2012 he was a senior Vice President and two years later he was made product Chief over both Google and Android smartphone operating system.

In 2011, Pichai reportedly was aggressively pursued for employment by Microblogging service Twitter and in 2014 he was touted as a possible CEO for Microsoft, but in both instances, he was granted large financial packages to remain with Google. He was also known to have helped negotiate Google's $3.2 billion deal to acquire Nest Labs in 2014. Therefore, when Google co-founders Larry Page and Sergey Brin announced the creation of Alphabet Inc in August 2015, it came as no surprise to industry insiders that Pichai was named CEO of Google, which was reorganized as the subsidiary. In December 2019 he was also named CEO of Alphabet, replacing Page, who stepped down.
