

1: How does the story "A Long Walk with Granny" show the strong bond between Granny and Mani?

Answer:

Introduction

The story "A Long Walk with Granny" by Ruskin Bond is a heartwarming tale about the love and care between a grandmother and her grandson, Mani. Their journey to Mussoorie to get new glasses for Granny highlights their strong bond. Through their actions and support for each other, the story shows how family members can share a deep connection across generations.

Body

Granny and Mani's bond is evident from the start. Granny raised Mani since he was a baby after his mother died, showing her love and dedication. She doesn't want to go to Mussoorie without him because she feels protective, as seen when she says, "And leave Mani here by himself? How could you even think of doing that?" (Page 2). This shows her deep affection for Mani.

Mani also shows his care for Granny. He offers to go with her to Mussoorie, knowing she can't see well. During the journey, he carries a bedding roll, guides her on the path, and asks, "Can you see all right, Granny?" (Page 3). These actions show his responsibility and love. Even when a landslide blocks the bus, Mani stays with Granny and walks the tough mountain path, proving his commitment.

At the end, their bond is beautifully shown when Granny sees Mani clearly with her new glasses and says, "How nice you look! What a fine boy I've brought up!" (Page 7). Mani rests his head on Granny's shoulder in the bus, showing trust and comfort. These moments highlight their mutual love and support, making their relationship special.

Conclusion

The story shows that Granny and Mani's bond is built on love, care, and trust. Granny's protective nature and Mani's support during the journey prove that family ties, especially between grandparents and grandchildren, are a blessing. Their story teaches us to value and support our loved ones.

2: Describe the challenges faced by Granny and Mani during their journey to Mussoorie and how they overcame them.

Answer:

Introduction

In "A Long Walk with Granny" by Ruskin Bond, Granny and Mani face several challenges on their journey from their village to Mussoorie to get Granny new glasses. Despite their difficulties, their courage and teamwork help them overcome these obstacles. The story shows how determination can lead to success.

Body

The first challenge is Granny's poor eyesight. Her old, scratched glasses make it hard for her to see the path, river, or trees (Page 1). Mani helps by guiding her and asking if she can see, while Granny stays confident, saying, "I can see the path and I can see your white shirt" (Page 3). Her determination keeps her moving forward.

Another challenge is the long journey to Nain. They walk in a light drizzle, which makes the path wet and slippery (Page 2). Granny carries a leaking umbrella, but she doesn't complain and walks steadily. Mani supports her by carrying a bedding roll and checking if she's tired, helping them reach Nain safely.

The biggest challenge is a landslide that blocks the bus road to Mussoorie (Page 4). Rocks and debris fall, making it dangerous, and the bus can't move forward. Instead of returning home, Granny and Mani decide to take a tough shortcut through the mountains. Granny says, "It's only ten miles. We did that yesterday" (Page 5), showing her bravery. They climb steep paths and walk through a dark forest, facing rain and mist, but reach Mussoorie together.

Conclusion

Granny and Mani face challenges like poor eyesight, a long walk, rain, and a landslide, but they overcome them with courage, teamwork, and determination. Their journey teaches us that with support and a strong will, we can face any difficulty and achieve our goals.

3: What role does nature play in the story "A Long Walk with Granny"?

Answer:

Introduction

Nature is an important part of "A Long Walk with Granny" by Ruskin Bond. The story describes beautiful landscapes and natural events that shape Granny and Mani's journey to Mussoorie. Nature adds beauty, challenges, and meaning to their adventure.

Body

The story is full of vivid descriptions of nature. As Granny and Mani walk to Nain, they see a "flock of parrots" and "light green fields" against "dark green forests" bathed in "golden sunshine" (Page 3). These sights make the journey enjoyable despite the rain. Mani picks wild blackberries, showing how nature provides small joys (Page 3).

Nature also creates challenges. A light drizzle makes the path wet, and Granny's umbrella leaks (Page 2). Later, a thick mist hides the view of Nain, and heavy rain soaks them as they enter the town (Page 3). The biggest challenge is a landslide, with "earth, trees, and bushes" crashing down, blocking the bus road (Page 4). These events test Granny and Mani's determination, but they keep going.

At the end, nature brings joy again. With her new glasses, Granny sees "distant villages, pretty women working in the fields, monkeys in the trees, and a rainbow in the sky" (Page 7). These sights make her happy and show how her improved vision connects her to the beauty of nature.

Conclusion

Nature in the story is both beautiful and challenging. It provides stunning views like green fields and rainbows, but also obstacles like rain and a landslide. Through it all, Granny and Mani's love for nature and each other helps them complete their journey, showing that nature is a powerful part of life.

4: How does Granny's character show courage and determination in the story?

Answer:

Introduction

In "A Long Walk with Granny" by Ruskin Bond, Granny is a 70-year-old woman with poor eyesight, yet she shows great courage and determination. Her actions during the journey to Mussoorie prove that age and physical challenges cannot stop a strong spirit.

Body

Granny's courage is clear when she agrees to travel to Mussoorie despite her weak eyes. She can only see Mani's fuzzy hair and sometimes his eyes, but she doesn't let this stop her (Page 1). When Mani's father insists she get new glasses, she hesitates but agrees when Mani joins her, showing her bravery to face a long trip.

Her determination shines during the journey. At 70, she walks to Nain in the rain, carrying a shopping bag and a leaking umbrella, without slowing down (Page 3). She confidently says, "I may be going blind, but there's nothing wrong with my legs" (Page 2), proving her strength. Even when Mani suggests resting, Granny says, "We'll rest when you're hungry" (Page 3), showing her focus on completing the journey.

The biggest test comes when a landslide blocks the bus to Mussoorie (Page 4). While others turn back, Granny decides to walk a tough mountain path, saying, "It's only ten miles. We did that yesterday" (Page 5). She climbs steep hills and walks through a dark forest, never giving up, even when it rains again. Her determination helps them reach Mussoorie safely.

Conclusion

Granny's courage and determination make her a strong character. Despite her age, poor eyesight, and challenges like rain and a landslide, she keeps going with a positive attitude. Her story teaches us that with determination, we can overcome any obstacle.
