Activity II: Thoughts or Diary

Option (a): Thoughts

That night, as I lay in bed, I felt bad for blaming the butler robot. It wasn't faulty; it was doing its job perfectly, sending my unused things to people who needed them. I was so careless, throwing my stuff everywhere. I didn't realize how lucky I was to have so much. The robot taught me to value my belongings. I want to be better, keep my room tidy, and maybe even help others like the robot does. I'll start tomorrow and become a Maximum Efficiency Boy!

Option (b): Diary

18th July 2025

Kafka told me today that Levi, my doll, is getting married! I'm so happy she's okay, but I miss her a lot. I keep thinking about how I bathed her, dressed her, and played with her every evening. Those were the best times. Kafka is so kind to share Levi's news. I hope she writes to me soon after her wedding. I can't wait to know more about her adventures!

Activity IV: Character Sketch

Ricky is an 11-year-old boy who lives in a futuristic house. At first, he is slovenly, throwing his things around and not helping with chores like washing his tiffin box or ironing clothes. He loves playing and ignores his mothers requests. When his parents get a butler robot, Ricky thinks its stealing his stuff, like his T-shirt and football. Later, he learns the robot sends unused items to people in need. Feeling ashamed, Ricky changes. He becomes a Maximum Efficiency Boy, keeping his things tidy and helping others with his pocket money. Ricky grows from careless to responsible.

Activity V: Editing

Corrected diary entry:

As we reached the beach in the evening, the sun was slowly dipping into the sea, painting the sky. The waves danced gently on the shore, and the salty breeze played with my hair.
