2. Thoughts – Louis Braille

Sample Answer:
Everything is so dark now. I cannot see my parents' faces. I cannot see the trees or the birds. How will I ever read? How will I know what the world looks like? I feel so helpless and sad. I want to be independent like other children, but how can I? I hope I can still learn and do things on my own. I miss the light.

3. Activity – Sequence / Description

3(A) – Correct Sequence:
4, 2, 3, 1

1. Sometimes Simon would get help with his work from a special teacher.
2. Simon always liked to arrange the books and pencils on his desk in the same way every day.
3. Simon shared his sandwiches with Mathew.
4. Simon shouted suddenly "NO!" to Hettie at the funfair.

3(B) – Scene Description (Ramp):
Sample Answer:
In the picture, a boy in a wheelchair is using a ramp to enter a building. The ramp is gently sloping, making it easy for him to move up without help. Without the ramp, he would not be able to enter because of the steps. The ramp helps him be independent and shows that everyone should have equal access to places. It is a small change that makes a big difference for differently-abled people.

4. News Report / Book Note

4(A) – News Report – Louis Braille's Invention
Sample Answer:

BREAKTHROUGH: BRAILLE CODE INVENTED BY TEENAGER
Special Correspondent

Paris, 10 January 1824: Louis Braille, a 15-year-old student at the Royal School for the Blind in Paris, has invented a new alphabet system using raised dots. This code can be read by touch, allowing visually challenged people to read and write independently. Braille worked for years to simplify an earlier military code. His system uses just six dots arranged in two columns. Teachers and students at the school are thrilled with the invention. "This will change lives," said Dr. Pignier, the headmaster. Braille's invention promises to bring light to the world of the visually impaired.

5. Diary Entry – Moyna

Sample Answer:
Date: 12 November 2025
Dear Diary,
Today I met the kind lady at the Samiti. She reads books every night! She told me that books have answers to all my "why" questions. I was so excited! I want to know why stars twinkle, why fish are silent, and so many other things. I have decided—I will learn to read, no matter what. I will work hard and one day, I will read all the books in the world!
